

as a group already know. Thus, I had hoped to forestall some denials.

Now, having said all this, I will present to you the brief which I submitted to the Government of Canada. Following that, I will present to you the answers I received, along with my comments. These answers were not received in time to include them in the abstract which is part of the printed proceedings of this conference.

I do want to express special thanks to Colman VonKeviczky for having provided me with some of the key information I included in my brief.
