

Article lauded

Editor, Citizen: The full-page article on Unidentified flying objects in the Upper Ottawa Valley (Citizen, June 29) deserves praise.

One of the greatest difficulties in attempting to solve the UFO mystery has been the attitude of the press in general. The general tendency has been to ridicule witnesses, and to report only the most sensational aspects of sightings while omitting vital yet less interesting facts which support the validity of the event. This, of course, has discouraged most witnesses of UFOs from reporting them. I am pleased that the article, as well as a few others recently, have been written objectively and fairly. This kind of reporting is bound to help toward an eventual solution to the mystery. Your staff writer David Smithers deserves to be commended.

Dear Sir:

The full-page article on UFOs in the Upper Ottawa Valley which appeared in Monday's Citizen deserves praise.

One of the greatest difficulties in attempting to solve the UFO mystery has been the attitude of the press in general. The general tendency has been to ridicule witnesses, and to report only the most sensational aspects of sightings while omitting vital yet less interesting facts which support the validity of the event. This, of course, has discouraged most witnesses of UFOs from reporting them. This lack of responsibility of the press in general was one of the main points I stressed in my book, "Science, the Public and the UFO".

I am pleased that Monday's article, as well as a few others recently, have been written most objectively and fairly. This kind of reporting is bound to help towards an eventual solution to the mystery. Your staff writer David Smithers deserves to be commended.

Yours truly,

Arthur Bray
