Dear Mr. Bray:

Your book was received here and is presently being read by one of our executive staff members. Whether a review will appear in the UFO Investigator in the near future depends on a number of factors, principal of which is the amount of other material that needs to be included in the newsletter during the coming months. Since yours is one of several new books to be published recently, we may put together a group of reviews and publish it. As you can imagine, we receive an enormous volume of material from many different sources, and it is next to impossible to use the material in ways that are practical for us and at the same time satisfying to the people who sent it. Generally speaking, we try to review books whenever feasible, so hopefully we will be able to take formal notice of yours before too long. I realize this may not be much consolation at the present time, but at least be assured that we are giving your book some attention and that we will follow through with a review if circumstances permit. If we have caused you any anxiety, please accept our apology. We do appreciate your providing us the review copy.

Sincerely,

Stuart Nixon
executive staff
