Child was awakened by a fireplace screen falling over. Saw a red sky, and thought it was a pretty sunrise, but then saw the object. Woke his sister, and showed it to her.

Sunrise didn't actually come till after 6:30, although object was seen at 4:05.

This reported sighting was dictated to his father, [REDACTED]

Call from Mr. [REDACTED] 18 Nov 1966 revealed that two of his children awoke at approximately 0405 this morning, 18 Nov 66, when a fireplace screen fell. They looked out the window and noticed a red light going overhead. The light would get brighter, then dimmer, brighter, then dimmer, repeating the process until it got nearer the horizon when a light like a star appeared and the red light disappeared. The star like object faded into the distance. A couple of minutes later another red, to dim, to brighter, object appeared going more West. His children said the object was visible for approximately $1\frac{1}{2}$ minutes. However, Mr. [REDACTED] said his children did not know how to estimate time and they could mean seconds or many minutes. His children came and woke him up after the objects disappeared. He got up but could see nothing. FTD Forms 164 were forwarded to Mr. [REDACTED] for his children's completion. Objects were going in a southerly direction.
