Tidningen kommenterar saken på ledande plats under rubrik-ken "Bombs över Sverige". Den ger ett erkännande åt de svenska mynligheternas korrekta hållning liksom åt den svenska allmänhetens lugna hållning. Samtidigt relateras de olika folklungar, som förelömnat.

"The Swedes are determined not to imagine that the state of bombs indicates military preparations against their country. At the same time the psychological effect of the "mysterious" bombing has been considerable and has opened unexpected wells of speculation.

Unofficial opinion appears to be pessimistic, believing that the co-lots are merely unusual preliminaries to political demands from a neighboring state. The optimists, however, are certain that there is some normal explanation, even though none has been given for the month of silent bombing that has made of Sweden one vast experimental target for an unknown bomber."

Tidningen fortsätter:

"All Sweden and all civilization will hope - even against
